

Extra 1 Our schoolP.21

Learning the names of different places in the school.

Aims

The school is probably the most familiar place for children. This is why it is important for them to learn the names of different rooms and places in school. Since these places are where children go to in their daily lives, once they have learned the names of these places, they will probably think about the names each time they go to these places.

Vocabulary

gym principal's office school office teachers' room library science lab lunchroom hallway music room classroom entrance hall stairway

Possible Activities

1. Take photos of various things in different places around the school before the lesson. Show the children these photos and ask where the items can be found.
Look at this picture. What's this? Where is this?
Is it in the entrance hall?
2. Ask questions about various things found in school. Children actually go to where the things are and find out the answers. The teacher can ask questions as follows.
How many steps are there in the stairway from the first floor to the second floor?
What color is the door of the school office?
